Nearly three hundred ambitious, patriotic high school boys were in the big parade of the cadet battalion yesterday afternoon. For a few moments on Main street the battalion halted and went through the manual of arms, with a skill that was so near perfect that each of the boys seemed an integral part of a great machine. With perfectly timed, mechanical precision the boys executed the movements of the drill.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the boys assembled on the high school campus and marched east on South Temple street to Main street in platoon formation. At Main they marched south to the postoffice, then doubled back to Second South, marched to State street and around the block back to Main street. On the arrival of the cadets at Main, the street between First and Second South streets was closed by the police to all vehicles and a cordon of police formed a line along the sidewalks to keep the spectators back while the boys gave their seven-minute drill in front of The Herald and the Tribune buildings.

The battalion came to a halt and the boys executed a rapid maneuver forming in close formation facing Commandant Webb, who gave the orders for the drill movements. Probably two thousand people were crowded around the long line watching every move of the natty cadets.

Just as the boys started to give their drill, Mayor John S. Bransford drove up to the corner of First South and Main streets in his automobile and started down Main street. He was stopped by Police Sergeant John Hempel, who told the mayor he would have to drive around on State street instead of Main. And the mayor did.

Cadets Loudly Cheered.
Following the drill, which was applauded and cheered by the hundreds of spectators, the cadets formed in columns of fours and marched back to the high school. They were loudly cheered along the line of march, and their appearance was commented favorably upon by every one who saw them. Several army officers from Fort Douglas who were downtown at the time made the parade and the drill. All of them were surprised and delighted with the appearance made by the boys.

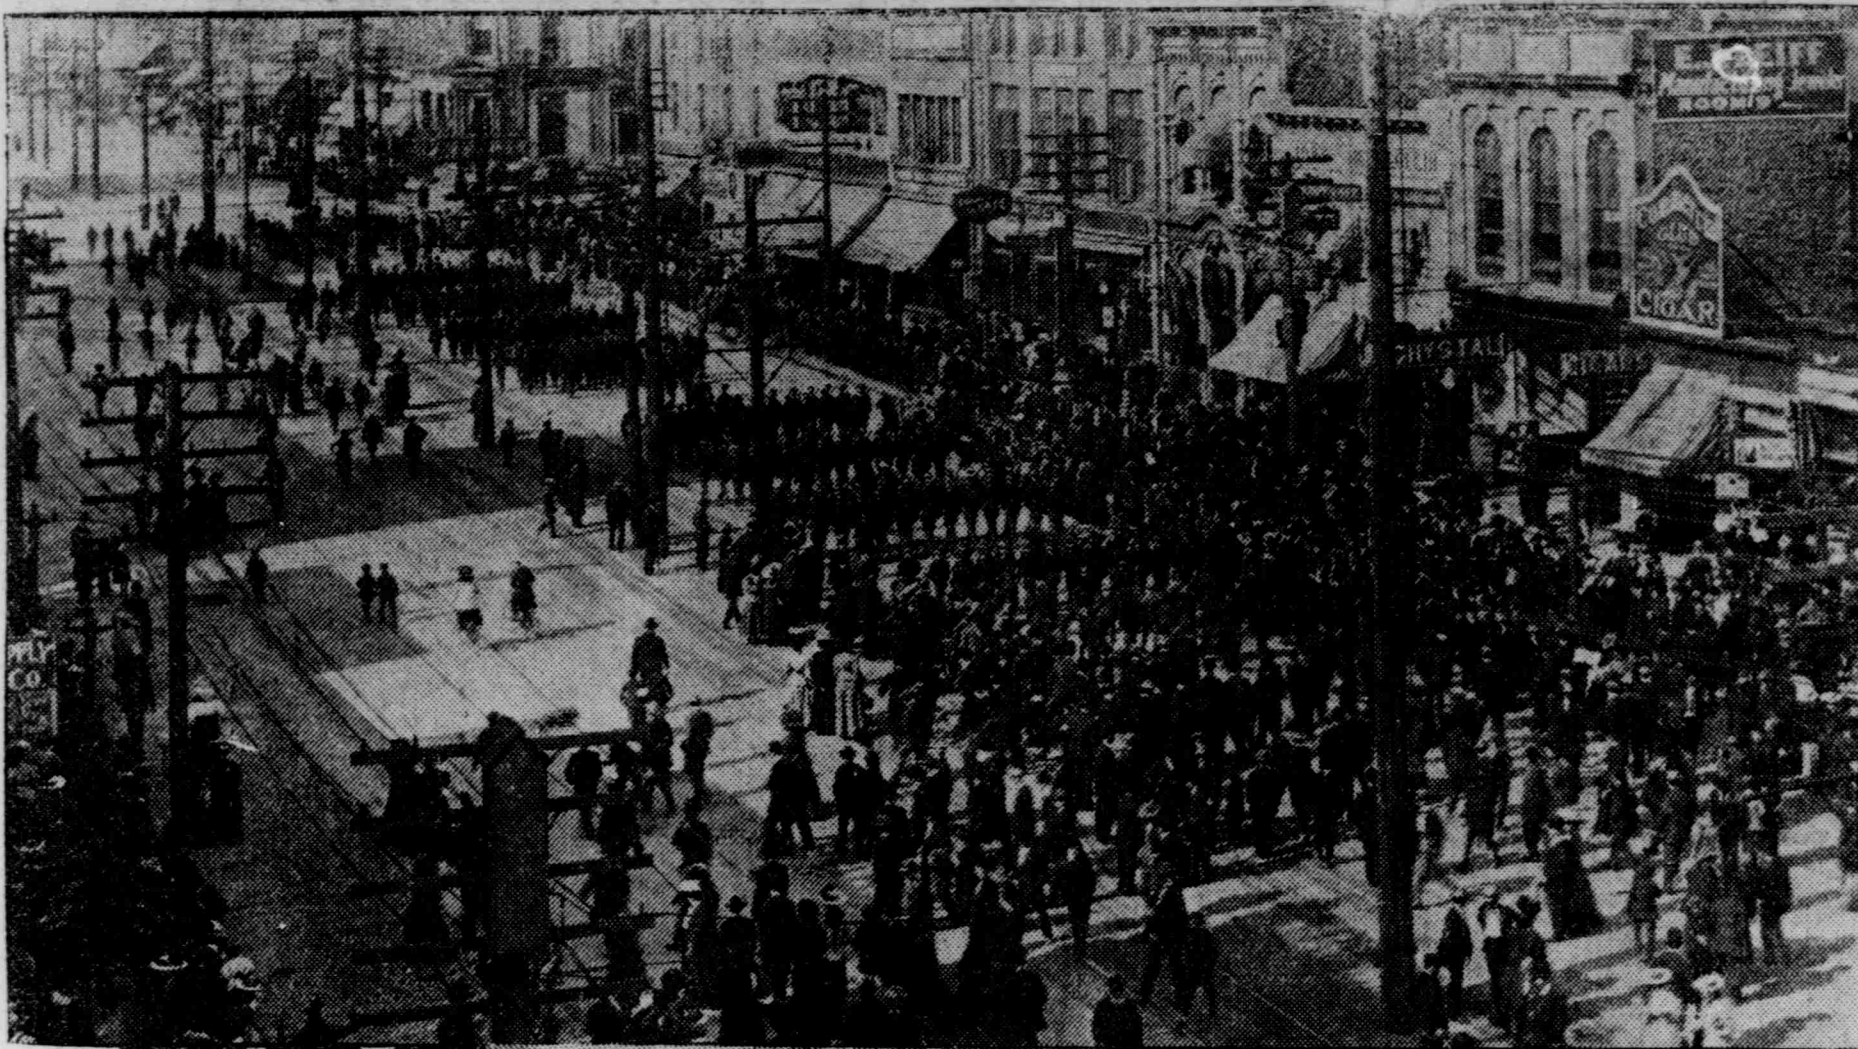

The high school cadet band, which furnished the music for the parade, was a revelation. Many of the boys have never played a musical instrument until a few months ago, yet the skill with which they played would have been the work of a professional musical organization. The cadets, themselves, were the only ones not entirely satisfied with yesterday's parade and drill. They declare that they are capable of making an even better showing than was made yesterday and are drilling with all the more vigor that they may accomplish this object. It is possible that another parade and drill will be given through the downtown streets next Friday.

Money Still to Be Raised.

Two-thirds of the money necessary to be raised to send the boys to San Francisco has been secured by the committee. There still remains about $4,000 to be raised. Most of the persons expected to contribute large amounts have already subscribed to the fund. The greater part of the money still to be secured must come from the small contributors, and the committee urges that every patriotic citizen of Salt Lake add something to the fund, even though it may be only a dollar. Contributions are being received at all of the newspaper office and all of the larger downtown business houses. The general committee of the Commercial club having in charge the trip of the boys will have an open meeting at the Commercial club tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock to discuss the plans made for the boys and to arrange the trip.

At the request of Admiral Evans, the High school cadets from Salt Lake will act as his personal bodyguard at the festivities attendant upon the arrival of the fleet at the Golden Gate. The boys will have the position of honor in the big parade at San Francisco. The committee plans are made for their entertainment while on the coast. Dr. G. B. Ploutz of Salt Lake is in charge of the medical arrangements for the comfort of the cadets. If possible, the boys will occupy Sibbey tents pitched on the beach. They will be at the shore when the fleet arrives and will salute the battleships as they steam into the harbor. One of the features planned is a drill by the High

THREE COWS ARRESTED.

Capitol Hill Resident Objects to Use of Lawn as Pasture.

Three cows were driven to police headquarters last night by C. B. Grogan of 21 East Capitol hill.

While the mild-eyed animals looked for something in the asphaltum of East First South street to graze upon, Grogan went inside and demanded that the police take charge of the cows.

"I spent $50 in improving my lawn," he said, "and for the past few nights these cows have been destroying it. When they arrived this evening to spend the night upon my premises, I decided to drive them to the police station. I don't know who owns them, but the owners ought to keep them up at night or pay the poundkeeper for caring for them. Where I live there are no fences and wandering horses and cattle can work all sorts of havoc at night."

The cows were turned over to a mounted policeman.

This morning there will be a sudden decrease in the milk supply at three Capitol Hill homes, unless the owners of the cows all decide to call for the animals before milking time.

VETO BY BRANSFORD.

Mayor Bransford yesterday vetoed the action of the council in awarding to James Kennedy $2,000 for pumping water out of the intercepting sewer while it was being constructed. The veto was on the work and was made on the recommendation of the city engineer.

STATION REST ROOM IS EQUIPPED UNDER Y. W. C. A. AUSPICES

Another Step Achieved in Helpful Work Being Carried on by Association in Salt Lake—Boarding House Needs More Room.

Another step in the advancement of the work of the Young Woman's Christian association is noted with the opening of a station rest room, under the Travelers' Aid work. The officers are: W. T. Fisher, president; C. F. Horn, vice president; Ray C. Horn, secretary and treasurer.

The place secured is at 139 North Third West, one-half block from the O. S. L. station, and it consists of two cheerful rooms, a sitting room and a bedroom, which have been carefully furnished and made attractive by the members of the association. Here weary travelers obliged to wait from train to train may be taken to rest and refresh themselves after a journey, and during a period of some times several hours, may find an opportunity to read or write letters.

Couches have been placed in both rooms and a comfortable bed, washstand and easy chairs make of the inner room a convenient place for changes of clothing and an ample rest. Since the opening of the place a week ago the rooms have never been empty, and yet the travelers have had to be brought sometimes from the R. G. W. station, several blocks away. Only when the wait between trains is long enough to warrant this course can this be done, and so the conditions are not by any means entirely satisfactory.

Another rest room near the other station would not entirely fill the bill, however, because Miss La Sourd, the capable young woman who is in charge of this branch of the work, cannot be in both places at one and the same time, and so far there is no possibility of employing a "runner" between the two stations made by Miss La Sourd are frequently of the literal kind, and the distance between the two stations makes the work much more arduous.

The work of the association is growing along well, and it is hoped that the place filled so capably by Miss Sara E. Johnston, who retired from the work the first of the present month, the members are on the track of a trained
